

Emerging Leaders Program 2011

This Program, facilitated by the University of Tasmania, is a unique professional development opportunity for current leaders, those who aspire to positions of leadership and those who aspire to provide leadership in a particular area of interest within the Local Government sector. The Program will focus on equipping emerging leaders with an understanding of the key challenges facing local government in the future; the skills and competencies to develop leadership ability; and the resources to continue learning and practicing leadership behaviours.

Objectives

The Objectives of the Program are as follows:

- Develop leadership skills and behaviours for people who will lead at all levels in Local Government.
- Provide an opportunity for participants to network with emerging leaders from different professions to build stronger links and understanding between professions.
- Increase appreciation of the wider challenges facing Local Government and how to respond to them.
- Develop a network of emerging leaders and coaches/mentors to support their development.
- Retain emerging leaders within the Local Government sector.

Program Details

The Program will be held on Thursday 17 November and Friday 18 November 2011 at The Sebel Hotel, Launceston, commencing at 10.00 am to enable travel on Thursday morning.

The workshops will be facilitated by Professor Janelle Allison (Director of the Cradle Coast Institute for Regional Development) and Professor David Adams (Professor of Management and Innovation) from the University of Tasmania. Both have extensive experience in working with local governments locally and internationally. The workshops will all be interactive using local government case material from Tasmania and internationally.
